

Eddie, The Junior Year

Drawing Blood

Copyright © 2018 by Dr. Robert E. Zee

Kathy's father tells her, "I'm at least glad to see your sense of humor has returned." Kathy replies, "at least I have one." Kathy's father asks, "what do you mean?" Kathy explains, "when they were drawing my blood, I told the nurse, 'I heard that, if you're going to draw blood, you should use a red crayon.' And, she told me, 'just sit still, and don't talk.' She didn't even think that was funny." At least Kathy's parents and Eddie have a sense of humor. They laughed at Kathy's little joke.